Liver, Lung and Blood Diseases: THEIR TRUE NATURE AND COMMON SENSE TREATMENT.

LIVER DISEASES.

The writer desires to preface the consideration of the diseases mentioned at the head of this article by saying that the truthfulness of the theories which he is about to advance has been confirmed by a vast experience embracing the successful treatment of thousands of cases, and he therefore promulgates his wiews with-out fear of their being successfully con-troverted. He holds that to a congested, torpid and diseased liver can be traced many diseases of diverse symptoms, and affecting various organs. Many of these diseases are usually treated as if primary affections, both physician and patient being doomed to disappointment by an utter lack of favorable results; for to treat a disease successfully we must have a clear conception of its true nature.

The "Housekeeper" of Health.

The liver is the largest gland in the human system. It is the great purifying organ of the system, and has very appropriately been termed the "housekeeper" of our health. The importance of the liver as a blood-purifying and excretory organ cannot be overestimated.

The foul and morbid matter absorbed from the various tissues, and taken into the blood, is received therefrom by a healthy liver and converted into bile. When the liver becomes torpid or con-gested, it fails to eliminate this vast amount of noxious substance, which, therefore, remains to poison the blood and be conveyed to every part of the system. Nature tries to work off this poison through other channels and organs—the lungs, skin, etc.-but these organs be comes overtaxed in performing this labor, in addition to their natural functions, and cannot long withstand the pressure, but becomes variously diseased.

Heart Disease.

The blood, surcharged with daily accumulated poison, as the result of torpor of the liver, unduly stimulates the nerves of the heart, and produces chronic irrita tion, palpitation, or excitement of that organ, developing forms of heart disease,

Dyspepsia and Costiveness.

The stomach and bowels cannot escape becoming affected, as a direct result of liver disease, and costiveness, hemorr-hoids, dropsy, dyspepsia, or diarrhea, and many other forms of chronic disease, are among the natural results. Sick Headache. The brain is not properly refreshed and stimulated by the unhealthy blood; hence duliness, dizziness, sick headache, bilious headache, sleepy or nervous feelings, gloomy forebodings, and irritability of Skin Diseases.

The blood poison, not being worked off by the liver, when that organ is diseased or sluggish, accumulates and filtering through the skin becomes so acrid as to produce blotches, pimples, cruptions, pustules, scaly incrustations, lumps, inlemed patches, acne, impetigo, prurigo, proriasis, salt-rheum, tetter; or, becoming still more virulent, the poison breaks out in boils, carbuncles, ulcers, or old sores, bet are difficult to be a second sores. that are difficult to heal, Scrofulous Diseases.

A long series of diseases, commonly thown as scrofulous, is caused by torpor of the liver—the want of proper excre-tion of the poisonous, festering matter circulating in the blood. These cause swellings about the neck, enlarged tonils, scrofulous sore eyes, running ulcers, discharges from the cars, catarrh or ozena, fever sores, white swellings, hipjoint disease, ulceration of bones, internal swellings, ulceration of the liver, kidneys, and uterus, and other maladies too numerous to mention.

Consumption.

The bile-poisoned blood, resulting from faulty action of the liver, passes from the upper and right cavity of the heart to the lower cavity, thence directly to the lungs, circulating through all parts of these most delicate organs. The tissues of the lungs are poisoned and irritated, and thus invite the scrofulous humors with which the blood is burdened. In this way consumption, which is scrofula of the lungs, so defined by all the most scientific authors, is established.

Our views on the nature of Consumption, Bronchitis, Laryngius, and kindred affections, together with proofs of their curability, are to be found in full in a Complete Treatise, on these affections, which will be sent to any address on receipt of ten cents in stamps. Bronchitis.

The bile poisoned blood is in a measure oxygenized and purified by the lungs; but in this effort these organs are overworked and the foul blood-poison may be smelled in the man's offensive breath. Nervous cough, bronchitis, and consumption itself, are the natural results. The lungs would not have become diseased had the liver done its whole duty. Asthma. This spasmodic and distressing malady is generally the result of reflex nervous action, produced by impure blood—the indirect results, in other words, of improperly-preformed function on the part of the liver.

Kidney Disease.

The impure blood, which a torpid liver fails to purify, affects not only the heart and lungs, but also other important organs. In its circulation it passes from the lungs back to the upper left cavity of the heart, thence to the lower cavity, and ce through the arteries and capillaries to every tissue and organ of the sys-tem. The kidneys are among the most important of those organs, furnishing, as do, an important excretion-that of the urine. They become diseased, being irritated and congested by the presence of bile-poisoned blood, and Bright's Disease, Diabetes, and kindred affections, cesult. The urine becomes scanty, high-polored, and at times loaded with red de-posits, or other disease products, which produce irritation and Inflammation of the Bladder, thus adding another malady the already-lengthy catalogue of ail

Malarial Poisons,

deb are absorbed from the atmosphere ken into the lungs, are eliminated, or ejected from the blood by the liver when his organ is in good condition, but when fails in such performances, the system affers from chills, fever, dumb ague, orgestive chills, and other phases of

The Symptoms of Liver Disease and its resultant and kindred affections may differ according to the circum-stances, aptitude, temperament, age, or constitutional weakness of the individual and the complications of the disease and its stage of advancement. Not unfrequently the complexion becomes pale and sallow, and there is pulliness under the eyes, bilious or sick headache, bitter taste in the mouth, tongue coated white or covered with a brown fur, backing cough, fever, restlessness, sometimes an unnatural greasy appearance of the skin, at others it is dry and harsh, has scaly or branny cruptions, pimples, dark blotches, and troublesome itching. The water is frequently scanty and high-col-ored, and, if allowed to stand, deposits a sediment. There is depression of spirits and a decided tendency to be discour-aged and despondent. The functional powers of the stomach are impaired, there is loss or irregularity of appetite, uneasiness in region of the stomach, op pression, sometimes nausca and "water-brash," or indigestion, flatulency and acid eructations; the bowels become irreg-ular, usually constrpated, and occasion-ally subject to obstinate diarrhea, at-night the pulse is adcelerated, and the palms of the hands and the soles of the feet have a burning sensation. The fore-going symptoms are not all present in any one case, nor are any two cases alike in every respect. Common Sense Treatment.

We appeal to the reader if it is not rea sonable to suppose that all these maladies that can be clearly traced to a com-mon origin, or cause, should be cured by the application of a remedy known to remove such cause? All these several divisions of maladies are many times treated as if entirely unlike in their nature and demanding different classes of remedies, according to the peculiarity of symptoms manifested. The writer, nevertheless, confidently asserts that all the diseases named in this article can be and are constantly cured by the use of a poare constantly cured by the use of a po-tent alterative or blood-purifier and liver invigorator. The active remedial prop-erties of the most efficient agents now known of the above classes of medicines are scientifically defined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which acts especially upon the liver, and through that organ upon the blood, cleansing and invigorating the system generally. The invigorating the system generally. The

does not debilitate the liver by over stimulation, nor irritate the stomach and bowels by disturbing the delicate processes of digestion, neither does it act with severity upon the blood, but it operates so gently, insensibly, and yet with so much certainty and efficiency, that it excites the surprise and admiration of all who use it.

If the bowels are unusually sluggish (chronic constipation) it is advisable, in conjunction with the Discovery, to use which are powerfully alterative, besides being mild, gentle, and unirritating in their operation. They are the natural allies—remedial assistants of the Dis-covery, and the two work harmoniously together. They should be taken in small doses, only one or two per day, and their use perseveringly followed until the bowels are properly regulated.

Pleasant Purgative Pellets,

Billous Attacks.

People who are habitually subject to bilious attacks, bilious headache, sick headache, and loss of appetite, are pleased to find that a course of the Discovery and Pellets furnishes immunity from such onsets, and prevents their usual recur-rence. Diseases of the liver are very fully considered in the "Common Sense Medical Adviser," by R. V. Pierce, M. D., (over 1,000 pages, 300 illustrations, bound in cloth) price $1.50, post-paid.

BLOOD DISEASES.

Medical authors describe about fifty varieties of skin disease, but as they al require for their cure very similar treat ment, it is of no practical use to know just what name to apply to a certain form of skin disease so you know how to cure it. We might describe various kinds of scrofulous sores, fever sores, white swell-ings enlarged glands, and ulcers, of varying appearance; might describe how contagious blood-poison may show itself in various forms of eruptions, ulcers, sore throat, bony tumors, etc., but as all these various-appearing manifestations of bad blood are cured by a uniform means, we deem such a course unnecessary. oughly cleanse the blood, which is the great fountain of life, and good digestion a fair skin, buoyant sprits, vital strength and bodily health will be established Our Complete and Illustrated Treatise on Scrofulous Diseases, such as 'Fever-sores,' "Hip-joint Disease," "White Swellings," and "Old Sores" and Ulcers, will be sent to any address, on receipt of ten cents in stamps.

I had not been able to walk out in the dooryard for six months. After using the favorite Prescription two weeks, I rode in a wagon ten miles; my neighbors were all surprised to see me up and going about and helping in my housework, after doctoring with thirteen of the best physicians we could get—and the last one told my husband that I would never be able to do my housework any more. I be able to do my housework any more. I am thankful that I wrote to you, for I had suffered Organic Weakness until I had almost given up in despair.'

TREATING the WRONG DISEASE.

Many times women call upon their family physicians, one with dyspepsia, another with palpitation, another with backache or pervousness, another with pain here and there, and in this way they all present alike to themselves and their easy going and indifferent doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he prescribes his pills and potions, as-suming them to be such, when, in reality, they are all symptoms caused by some uterine disorder. While the physician is ignorant of the cause of suffering, he en-courages his patient until large bills are made, and the poor sufferer is no better, but probably worse for the delay, treat-ment and other complications made. A proper medicine directed to the cause' would perhaps have entirely removed the disease, thereby instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery.

It Beats the Doctors.

GOLCONDA, HUMBOLDT Co., NEV. Dr. R. V. PIERGE: Dear Sir-I received your kind letter a long time ago, but was feeling so badly that I was afraid to stop treatment with our home doctor here. I stopped doctoring with him, and got a bottle of your Golden Medical Discovery, one of Favorite Prescription and a phial of Pellets. After taking them according to directions I have been enjoying perfect health, and have since done the work for ten in a family with comfort. I have received over four hundred letters. In reply I have described my case and the treatment used, and have carnestly advised them to do likewise.
